

The no call list has by far become the greatest thing for me and our family. We can finally sit down to a nice dinner together and not have to worry about being interrupted by a telemarketer. I am a person who works full time night shift, I can now sleep during the day without being woken up by nuisance phone calls, only to be asked when it is more convenient to call back. Its not convenient to me to have them call at all. We have been suckered into too many deals that have turned out to be bad for us. The worst part is when you tell them "not interested" or "no" they keep going rather than thanking a person and ending the call. I also dont agree with the computer automated systems that dont hang up when you do. What happens if the need comes up where someone has to call 911 for help but cant because the computer hasn't finished the pre-recorded message?

Please dont change anything! Finally something the gov't has done for the people that the people like!
